OUR CONCERN IS YOUR SECURITY

The security industry was already evolving when 9/11 abruptly focused the attention of the nation on the importance of a proactive security program. Corporate America cannot afford to be complacent in protecting its employees, visitors and property. You need to partner with a leader that keeps you one step ahead and involved every step of the way. We invite you to discover more about the insights, experience and proven leadership of SOS Security Incorporated ("SOS").

WELCOME TO A NEW LEVEL OF SECURITY.

SECURITY THREATS CHANGE. OUR LEADERSHIP REMAINS STABLE.

Why SOS?

SOS has been anticipating and solving the challenges of our clients since 1969. We are at the forefront of managing the real-world threats that comprise today's evolving security landscape, and continue to keep our clients a step ahead in a wide range of industries, including telecommunication, utility, pharmaceutical, entertainment, financial, government, healthcare and education, among others. From security officer services, executive protection, and special events to security concierge/receptionist, management and consulting, and investigations, SOS provides the highest level of service, integrity and professionalism.

Training

We believe training is paramount. So you can be confident that the SOS personnel on your site have received across-the-board, multi-functional training. Because security is a moving target, all our personnel attend regular training that keeps them on top of emerging and potential threats, as well as the newest procedures and equipment to deal with such threats. As an added layer of protection, we've created a Security Awareness Program, designed to educate your employees. Their eyes and ears can be the first line of defense, and we use that to our—and your—advantage.

National Response

For clients with nationwide security requirements, SOS maintains an experienced and savvy National Response Team. This creates higher quality and consistency of service, greater control and significant cost savings for you. In addition to our National Security Director, SOS will cross-train the security staff to provide multi-functionality and develop seamless communication among the security personnel, as well as greater responsiveness in the event of executive protection, and emergency or special-coverage situations. By providing response coverage directly through our corporate headquarters and regional and branch offices, which are strategically located throughout the country, you get direct access to our decision makers and a program flexible enough to adapt quickly to your evolving challenges.

Management

The strategy and tactics that drive your security plan are executed by our top management and supervisors. You get the high-level experience, insights and intuition of some of the country's elite security people, who actively work to protect you.

Consistency

Year after year, SOS has put teams of hard-working, professional, effective security personnel on our clients' sites. Through a combination of competitive wages, career-advancement opportunities and other incentives, we keep morale and motivation uncommonly high and turnover far below the industry average.
